Stiller built the company into one of the fastest growing retail real estate companies in Florida. Historically, Woolbright's typical projects consisted of redevelopments of existing shopping centers in metro areas. Recently, ground-up developments have been added and this successful combination has helped make Woolbright one of the largest acquirers, managers, and owners of retail real estate in Florida. Stiller began his career with Traveler's Asset Management International Corporation as director of property management. He also co-founded The Sterling Companies in 1993. Stiller is a licensed real estate broker and licensed general contractor.
