Hi guys,
below find a treasure trove of info from An Event Apart in Seattle, which I am grateful to have attended this past week. Awesome speakers from Yahoo!, Amazon, and numerous famous-to-web-designers groups. I recommend both of Zeldman's talks, and the last one on Bulletproof web design- this guy is awesome. Also Content First is great concerning getting people to think about actual content for their spectacular interactive intarweb pages.

The presentations themselves, all of which were done beautifully in Keynote/OpenOffice NOT POWERPOINT:

The public Flickr pool for the event (an astounding number of people had high-end DSLRs and sat right in front snapping away like paparazzi. I meanwhile brought only a meager point-n-shoot):

My own photos/sketches from the trip, including images of nerds beating one another with foam weapons, fun but not directly part of the conference:

Everything is free to share via email/personal channels, but the conference slides are not to be posted anywhere public.

Thanks again to everyone who made the trip possible.

Best,
Steve
