

Bios

Danielle Mericle, Production Coordinator, Digital Media Group, DCAPS, 607.255.2308

Danielle Mericle is the Production Coordinator for the Digital Consulting and Production Services Unit at Cornell University's Olin Library. In addition to overseeing the creation of digital content for Olin Library, she serves as project manager for many of University's grant projects. She has conducted numerous digitization workshops and presented papers at Digital Library Federation, ALA, and the National Archives of Peru. Previously, she worked as the primary photographer for New York Public Library's Digital Unit, working on such diverse projects as Making of America II, Utopia, and Performing Arts in America, 1875-1923. Danielle Mericle holds an MFA from Syracuse University, and has taught photography at a number of institutions, including Alfred University, Syracuse University, and Ithaca College.

Liz Muller, Curator of Digital & Media Collections/Head of Archival Technical Services, Division of Rare & Manuscript Collections, 607.255.3530

Liz Muller is Curator of Digital and Media Collections and Head of Archival Technical Services in the Division of Rare and Manuscript Collections. She is responsible for developing digital collections and for managing the moving image and sound collections within the division. Liz serves on the Editorial Committee for SAHARA (Society of Architectural Historians Architecture Resources Archive) and is an active member of the Visual Resources Association (VRA). She holds an MA in the history of architecture and MS in library and information science.

Susette Newberry, Assistant Director, Research & Learning Services, 607.255.3927

Susette Newberry is assistant director of Research & Learning Services in Olin Library, and selector for art resources for the Fine Arts Library. A former visual resources archivist, she holds a Ph.D. in the history of art, and has lectured in the history of photography at Ithaca College. Susette provides instruction and reference support for faculty and students.