Home

Welcome to AguaClara! AguaClara is a research organization at Cornell University that designs sustainable, electricity-free water treatment. This technology is then implemented in Honduras and India in a partnership with Agua Para el Pueblo and AguaClara LLC. All of AguaClara's research is open-source so please look through this wiki page or visit our website aguaclara.cornell.edu to learn more!

Enter site for current team members

Enter site for prospective partners and team members