I am a Spanish student who is studying in Cornell this year 2014-2015, and as a member of AguaClara team, I am working in the Distribution System Contamination Prevention subteam. Since tap water is still a problem in some countries, and considered unsafe, we are currently trying to understand the causes why water in a system can be polluted by external agents. Then, we will do a brainstorming to find the best solutions and will build computer models as well as a physical model to check and review our ideas.
