

San Matías

AguaClara's 11th water treatment plant in Honduras is just outside the small town of Robledal in the department of El Paraíso. The plant treats up to 14 L/s and serves four communities: San Matías, Robledal, Corral Falso, and San Francisco, which collectively include 665 households or about 3,800 people. The project was financed by the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation (COSUDE), the municipality, and a joint water board made up of representatives from each community.
