

Robot for Nonverbal Communication Research

We are researching how a robot can use nonverbal communication (body language) to serve as an assistant for a human designer. The purpose of this project is to develop the experiment testbed for this robot, including object recognition and motor control.

Required Skills: Rapid prototyping, ROS URDF, Python programming, a motivation to delve into robotics, including sensing and control

Contact: Guy Hoffman, hoffman@cornell.edu