Year in Review: arXiv annual report posted arXiv's 2023 Annual Report is now available online! arXiv began publishing annual reports in 2020 to give our community a summary of arXiv's initiatives, accomplishments, and financial activities each year. We also use our annual report as an opportunity to thank our members, sponsors, affiliates, individual donors, and arXiv enthusiasts – AKA, you! You can...Continue Reading Year in Review: arXiv annual report posted

Attention arXiv users: Change to /list URLs coming soon

arXiv users will soon see changes to the date format in /list URLs. Currently, arXiv /list URLs use the YYMM date format when displaying papers from a specific time range. arXiv will soon be deploying a change that would switch from the YYMM to the YYYY format in /list URLs. For example, if a user...Continue Reading Attention arXiv users: Change to /list URLs coming soon

Attention Authors: Temporary changes to announcement schedule due to upcoming holidays and staff development

This coming Wednesday, May 22, 2024, the arXiv editorial staff will be attending a team development retreat. Because all editorial staff will be participating in this professional development, it will temporarily affect arXiv's mailings, help desk, and announcement schedule. This brief change will only affect the announcement of new submissions; arXiv servers will otherwise remain...Continue Reading Attention Authors: Temporary changes to announcement schedule due to upcoming holidays and staff development

Major changes coming to arXiv's (La)TeX processing

Major changes are coming to the way arXiv processes (La)TeX. In the next few days, we will be retiring the famous arXiv-developed "AutoTeX" system. Moving forward, arXiv will only use one current version of TeX to convert files, which we plan to closely track to the annual TeX live releases. While arXiv has used AutoTeX...Continue Reading Major changes coming to arXiv's \(La\)TeX processing

arXiv presenting at Year of Open Science Culminating Conference

What have we learned from 2023, the Year of #OpenScience? Let's find out! The Center for Open Science, in collaboration with NASA, are co-hosting the Year of Open Science Culminating Conference "Embracing the Future: Open Science in the U.S. Federal Context and Beyond". This virtual conference will span two days (Thursday, March 21, 2024 and...Continue Reading arXiv presenting at Year of Open Science Culminating Conference

Pi Day is Giving Day!

Thursday, March 14th is arXiv's Giving Day! The number pi will always hold a special place in our hearts, which makes the fact that arXiv Giving Day falls on 3.14 this year even more special! arXiv Giving Day is a part of Cornell Giving Day, which is facilitated by our parent organization, Cornell University. On...Continue Reading Pi Day is Giving Day!

Attention arXiv users: Re-implemented RSS

arXiv has re-implemented our RSS feed to improve results for users. This is a completely rewritten version of arXiv's RSS feed that runs in the cloud. It should create a more accurate list of each day's articles. For technical details see RSS Feeds – arXiv info. Changes from the old RSS feed: new base URL...Continue Reading Attention arXiv users: Re-implemented RSS

Attention Authors: Temporary change to announcement schedule due to MLK Jr. Holiday

This coming Monday, January 15, 2024, arXiv staff will be observing Martin Luther King Jr. Day. This holiday will temporarily affect arXiv's mailings, help desk, and announcement schedule. This brief change will only affect the announcement of new submissions; arXiv servers will otherwise remain in operation, existing papers will still be available to browse, and...Continue Reading Attention Authors: Temporary change to announcement schedule due to MLK Jr. Holiday
