Example of using a TOC for data within a fuller page

Sometimes a lot needs to be put in one page rather than split up into sub-pages. A Table of Contents (TOC) auto-magically generated on that page can help orient a reader.

Table of contents

Topic 1

There are many choices to select from regarding Topic 1.

- Usually it's good to start with Topic 1 (hey, I'm making up filler here!), but it is not necessary.

Choice 1

A great choice, if I may say so.

Choice 2

Another excellent choice.

- But then again, maybe not. Who's to know?

Choice 3

And so forth:

Sub-choice A

Sub-choice B

Sub-choice C

Sub-choice D

Choice 4

And so on.

Topic 2

As it goes on.

Topic 3

And on and on.

Topic 4

And still on:

1. So.
2. Many.
3. Topics.
4. And.
5. Choices.

Topic 5

Some more info